White Book on the Baralong Case Threatens the United Kingdom With More Destructive Raids of Bomb-dropping Airships.

REFERS TO "CRIMES" OF BRITISH SAILORS

Government Declines to Consider Such Reprisals as Shooting Prisoners, but Will Go the Limit With Zeppelins.

[By Evening Herald Special Wire] Berlin, Aug. 15.—(By wire to the Associated Press.)—Threats of more destructive Zeppelin raids in England in reprisal for "crimes committed by British seamen," are contained in a white book regarding the Baralong case transmitted to the government by the Reichstag. Members of the crew of the Baralong, a British patrol boat, were reported to have killed German sailors from a submarine sunk by the British in a recent war. The government's answer is quoted as follows in the official news agency:

"Attempts will be made against England within the limits of the law of nations without any regard for reprisals. When the British government is asked to consider the possibility of reprisals against other detained boats or airships which contain establishments of a military character, shall cause England to remember the Baralong case."

The white book contains official German and British documents. The British report, according to a statement given out today by the German news agency says:

"The German government, replying to the declaration of the British government in regard to the German memorandum of January 15, 1916, on the Baralong case on which Germany rejected the British proposal to submit the case to a neutral board, said it had decided on account of the British government's attitude that it was impossible to continue negotiations. At the same time the government announced it would take reprisals of a nature corresponding with the provocation."

"Of course the government had declined to respond to the British proposal to submit the case to a neutral board, replying to the British proposal, for the British government's attitude that it was impossible to continue negotiations. At the same time the government announced it would take reprisals of a nature corresponding with the provocation."

STRIKE SITUATION BRIGHTENS AFTER PERIOD OF GLOOM BEFORE CONFERENCE

"I Am Very Hopeful," Says Lee, Head of the Brakemen, as Union Chiefs Leave the White House This Afternoon.

ATTITUDE OF LEADERS DISSIPATES PESSIMISM

"Nothing Is Undone; We Will See the President Again," Says Garretson; Some Form of Eight-Hour Plan Possible.

[By Evening Herald Special Wire] Washington, Aug. 15.—(By wire to the Associated Press.)—Nothing is done and nothing is undone. We will see the president again, possibly tomorrow, said A. H. Garretson, spokesman for the railway employees, as the men's representatives left their conference with President Wilson this afternoon.

W. G. Lee of the employees' committee said that both the workers and the employers had several proposals and counter proposals before them, and that both parties would see President Wilson tomorrow and give their decision.

"I am very hopeful," said Mr. Lee. The disposition of the strike situation, which had been gloomy when the conference began.

No form of arbitration now is in the air. The employees' committee declared. They said there was a possibility that an agreement would be reached on one of the several compromise proposals under consideration.

President Wilson gave out the following statement after his conference with the employees this afternoon: "There is no change. There is an earnest effort being made to reach a settlement."

Washington, Aug. 15.—As the heads of the railroad brotherhoods assembled at the White House in a session this afternoon for their second conference with President Wilson, they were expressions of doubt among others whether the men would accept the proposal of the railroad made to the president earlier in the day, by the industry committee.

In effect the railroad proposed, it was understood, to grant the eight-hour day, and to leave the question of its application to be decided by some commission.

The heads of the brotherhoods said before going to the president's conference that they themselves could not pass upon such a proposition but would have to refer it back to the general committee of union heads in New York.

As they entered the president's room, however, the union leaders gave outward evidence of pessimism. "Let us pray," was the cryptic response of A. E. Garretson, head of the union, when asked what he thought of the outcome.

"I hope to the Lord this conference will be favorable," said Lee of the brakemen.

It was apparent that the feeling of optimism which prevailed when yesterday's conference closed had been dissipated.

After the committee of railroad managers had another conference with President Wilson, they today became known that a proposal was under consideration by which the railroad would accept the principle of an eight-hour day and leave the working out of its application to the industry committee, composed of some body formed for the purpose.

ORDER FOR TROOP MOVEMENT TO LINE HAS BEEN SHELVED FOR THE PRESENT

Suspension Decided On Because of Difficulty of Shipping Food if Railway Strike Were to Go Into Effect.

STEP TAKEN ON ADVICE FROM GENERAL FUNSTON

Estimates Give Civilian Population of Border States Flour for Only a Week Ahead, and Army Has Little More.

[By Evening Herald Special Wire] Washington, Aug. 15.—(By wire to the Associated Press.)—The remaining mobilized units of the national guard to proceed to the border have been suspended by the war department. The official explanation has been made, but it is known that the delay of the railroad strike action has been the moving consideration.

The suspension of the troops to the border will not have any effect on the situation of the war department. It is an indication that the war department is not a proponent of the strike and that if the railroad strike situation clears up the troops will be moved to the border line.

A telegram from Major General Funston made public by the war department, follows: "In view of the possibility of a general railroad strike, I deem it inadvisable to move the troops to the border. It is a possibility that the war department is not a proponent of the strike and that if the railroad strike situation clears up the troops will be moved to the border line."
